

EAST, CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN AFRICA HEALTH COMMUNITY
Fostering Regional Cooperation for Better Health

17th ECSA CONM Biennial Scientific Conference

SCIENTIFIC CONFERENCE: 14–16 September 2026

8th Quadrennial General Assembly: 17–18 September 2026

Golden Tulip Airport Hotel, Zanzibar, United Republic of Tanzania

“

Nurses and Midwives Sustaining Quality
Healthcare in a Changing World

”

PROGRAM

SCIENTIFIC CONFERENCE: 14–16 September 2026

8th Quadrennial General Assembly: 17–18 September 2026

Golden Tulip Airport Hotel, Zanzibar, United Republic of Tanzania

“

Nurses and Midwives Sustaining Quality

Healthcare in a Changing World

”

Working Draft

Programme subject to final confirmation of speakers, session chairs and presenting authors.

Contents

1 Welcome Messages

► Pg4

2 Conference Overview

► Pg6

3 Graduation Ceremony

► Pg7

4 Conference Theme and Sub-Themes

► Pg8

5 Theme Speakers and Key Session

► Pg10

6 Side Sessions

► Pg10

7 Scientific Conference Programme at a Glance

► Pg12

8 Detailed Oral Presentation Programme

► Pg16

9 Poster Presentation Arrangement

► Pg34

10 Quadrennial General Assembly Programme

11 Consolidated Index of Accepted Oral Presentations

12 Programme and Presenter Notes

1 Welcome Messages

Welcome Messages From The ECSACONM President

Dear Distinguished Guests, Delegates, Partners, Fellows, Nurses, Midwives, Researchers, Educators and Friends of ECSACONM,

It is my great honour and pleasure to welcome you to the 17th ECSACONM Biennial Scientific Conference and 8th Quadrennial General Assembly in Zanzibar, United Republic of Tanzania.

This year's conference is convened under the theme "Nurses and Midwives Sustaining Quality Healthcare in a Changing World." The theme reflects the essential role of nurses and midwives in responding to evolving health needs, strengthening health systems, advancing equity, promoting research and innovation, and sustaining quality care across our region and beyond.

The scientific conference provides a regional platform for sharing evidence, exchanging best practices, presenting research findings, strengthening professional networks and building collaboration. It brings together nurses, midwives, educators, researchers, policymakers, regulators, health leaders and partners who share a commitment to advancing nursing and midwifery excellence.

This gathering is also a moment of celebration as we recognise ECSACONM fellows who have successfully completed their specialist training. Their achievement reflects the College's continued commitment to developing a competent, confident and highly skilled nursing and midwifery workforce for the region.

As we proceed to the Quadrennial General Assembly, we will reflect on our collective progress, deliberate on priorities for the College and the profession, and elect new leadership to guide ECSACONM into its next chapter.

On behalf of ECSACONM, I warmly welcome you all and wish you a productive, inspiring and memorable conference.

Dr. Glory Msibi
President, ECSACONM

Welcome Messages From the ECSA-HC Director General

Dear Distinguished Delegates, Colleagues and Partners,

On behalf of the East, Central and Southern Africa Health Community (ECSA-HC), I am pleased to welcome you to the 17th ECSACONM Biennial Scientific Conference.

ECSACONM remains an important professional college within the ECSA-HC family, contributing to the strengthening of nursing and midwifery education, practice, leadership, research and regulation across the region. Nurses and midwives are central to resilient health systems, universal health coverage, quality service delivery and effective responses to emerging and re-emerging health challenges.

The conference theme, “Nurses and Midwives Sustaining Quality Healthcare in a Changing World,” speaks directly to the realities facing health systems today. Workforce shortages, technological transformation, disease outbreaks, inequities in access, climate-related pressures and changing population needs require a well-prepared, innovative and resilient nursing and midwifery workforce.

This conference is an opportunity to strengthen regional dialogue, promote evidence-based practice, build professional networks and identify practical solutions that can improve healthcare delivery across our member states. I commend ECSACONM for its continued leadership and congratulate the graduating fellows.

I wish all delegates fruitful deliberations and a successful conference.

Dr. Ntuli Angyelile Kapologwe

Director General, ECSA-HC

2 Conference Overview

The 17th ECSACONM Biennial Scientific Conference will be held from 14–16 September 2026, at Golden Tulip Airport Hotel, Zanzibar, United Republic of Tanzania. The scientific conference will combine keynote and plenary addresses, parallel oral presentations, panel discussions, poster sessions, partner-led side sessions, professional networking and the ECSACONM fellowship graduation ceremony.

Conference Objectives

- Provide a regional platform for dissemination of nursing and midwifery research, innovation and evidence-informed practice.
- Strengthen dialogue on equitable access to quality healthcare and the contribution of nurses and midwives to stronger health systems.
- Advance nursing and midwifery leadership, advocacy, regulation and policy engagement.
- Promote responsible integration of technology into nursing and midwifery education, regulation and practice.
- Build professional preparedness and resilience in relation to climate change, environmental sustainability and emerging health threats.
- Facilitate networking, mentorship, partnership development and regional knowledge exchange.
- Celebrate the achievements of graduating ECSACONM fellows and conduct the statutory business of the Quadrennial General Assembly.